

Antillean Crested Hummingbird Orthorhyncus cristatus

FEATHERY FACTS

The male of this tiny hummingbird has a tall spiky mohawk. Its feathers are a sparkling green when they catch the light. They spend their days visiting flowers to drink nectar. When building their tiny nest, they use spider webs to hold it together.

