

Puerto Rican Emerald Chlorostilbon maugaeus

FEATHERY FACTS

These tiny hummingbirds are named after the sparkling green of their feathers. They use their long pointed beaks and tongues to feed on insects, spiders, and nectar from flowers. The males' feathers are especially bright - to attract females. Often male birds are more colourful than females.

